On February 23rd, 2008, just five days after returning from a trip to Ghana, Africa, Dawn Dubsy went to Northwestern Hospital to get tested for Malaria because she had been experiencing fatigue, fever and a severe headache. The test result came back positive and she was admitted immediately. One day after being diagnosed Dawn was fighting for her life in the ICU as her body went into septic shock and her organs began to fail. She was transferred to the University of Chicago Medical Center on Feb. 29th and was brought immediately into surgery to save her life.

On March 3rd 2008, Dawn lost her limbs to her knees and elbows. Despite several exhaustingly long and traumatic surgeries, her courageous fight continues. Her strength and determination are a source of inspiration for her entire family and friends.

Dawn is a generous and kind-hearted soul who has touched the lives of everyone she's ever come in contact with. A free spirit who has seen the world over, she is an adventurer who loved to hike, bike, surf, skateboard, snowboard, and also finished four marathons. She is a care-taker who worked with children and the sick and has contributed considerable amounts of positive energy onto our earth in her time here. If there were more like Dawn among us, the world would be a better place.

She graduated from Andrew High School in 1993 and attended the University of Iowa where she graduated with a B.S. in Nursing.

Dawn truly lives life and her adventures have taken her to places such as Thailand, Spain, Mexico, Africa and nearly every state in the U.S.

When Dawn is not traveling or working in other places around the world, she works as a Nurse at Children's Memorial Hospital. On her trip to Africa she even brought much needed supplies to a hospital. She is constantly displaying selfless acts and giving her all in everything she does. Dawn also has a very artistic side, which is why she was going to school to complete another undergraduate degree in Fashion Design.

Dawn has helped and inspired so many people around the world. Now it's our turn to take care of Dawn.

Our mission is to raise funds so Dawn can live the best life possible with the most advanced tools the medical field has to offer.

To help Dawn with the financial burden she now faces, Dawn's friends and family will be hosting a benefit.
